Oregon Historical Quarterly* issues now available online through JSTOR

Portland, OR – August 23, 2010: We are excited to announce a new partnership between the Oregon Historical Society's scholarly journal, the Oregon Historical Quarterly, and JSTOR. Now, all back issues of the Quarterly, from its first publication in 1900 to the present, are available online through JSTOR, the not-for-profit digital archive. Full-text articles can be accessed as PDF files for searching, browsing, downloading, and printing. The Oregon Historical Quarterly is available as a part of JSTOR's Arts and Sciences VIII Collection.

JSTOR was created in 1995 as a service to help scholars, researchers, and students discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content in a trusted digital archive. It contains over one thousand academic journals and other scholarly content in both digital and print formats. JSTOR was originally conceived as a way to allow university and college libraries to continue to have access to a large amount of published scholarship without having to create adequate space to store these printed materials. If you are a Multnomah County Library card holder, you can have access to JSTOR through the library's website.

About the Oregon Historical Society

The Society has served since 1898 as Oregon's primary research collection and museum about Oregon history. OHS has an extensive collection of historical pieces, including over 85,000 artifacts and 3 million photographs and films. It safeguards and presents Oregon's history through a museum, research library, traveling exhibits, school programs and website content.
