Free Admission to the Oregon History Museum for Smithsonian Museum Day
Valid ticket required

Portland, OR – August 30, 2010— On Saturday, September 25, 2010, the Oregon History Museum is once again participating in the 6th annual Smithsonian Museum Day. Museum Day is an annual event hosted by Smithsonian Media in which participating museums across the country open their doors for free to anyone presenting a Museum Day Ticket. Visitors to the Oregon History Museum will have an opportunity to view the latest traveling exhibit Arte en la Charrería: The Artisanry of the Mexican Equestrian Culture, as well as the museum's permanent award-winning exhibit Oregon My Oregon. For a full schedule of the museum's current exhibits, please visit www.ohs.org.

Each Museum Day Ticket provides admission for one person per household, plus one guest. This ticket will grant admission for two to one participating museum on September 25, and must be printed and presented to the admission counter. Your address and a valid email are required to access your Museum Day Ticket. Don't miss your chance to enjoy local culture for free during this year's Smithsonian Museum Day.

To access your ticket and to view a full list of participating museums across the country, visit www.smithsonianmag.com/museumday.

About the Oregon Historical Society

The Society has served since 1898 as Oregon's primary research collection and museum about Oregon history. OHS has an extensive collection of historical pieces, including over 85,000 artifacts and 3 million photographs and films. It safeguards and presents Oregon's history through a museum, research library, traveling exhibits, school programs and website content.
